

The Spring-
Summer season
huh..

I've already bought a shirt and some socks

but honestly, I still want more

Looks like I really can't buy any more clothes for spring-

No matter how much you
think about it,
one shirt is not enough to get through spring

And there are games
that I want to buy too..

But I just don't have the money

It would be nice to have some money.

Just why am I so poor?

No,
even bigger.

and then make a Fortune
selling its stock

Maybe I could get head-hunted
by an unknown
startup
company

No.

If only I could find a better company with better pay.

No

If only I was more adept..

No,
we must go
further.

then everything would go
my way.

If I
was an oil
prince,

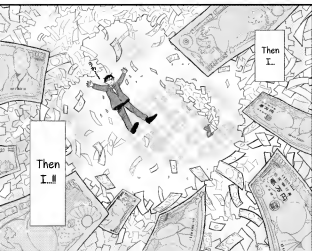

and from
my wallet,

Maybe if the space-time
continuum
was distorted,

an infinite
amount of cash
flowed out...

Then
I...

Then
I...!!

Oh,
really?

that those basics never change, no matter the season.

And I believe

Firstly
I've
said this before.

In men's fashion, if you can grasp the basics, you can always look fashionable.

But the impression you give off will be way too serious if we use the same
monotone color scheme we used with your winter clothing.

so it's better to add
one more color
to the outfit
you choose.

Well, if that's the case then I am pretty happy.

Right?

This
is high-gauge

This
is middle-gauge

This
is low-
gauge

MB's Note

#19

How well do you know what you have?

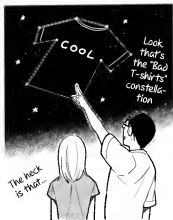

When people are lost, they tend to pick what they chose last time. In psychology this tendency is called the "law of maintaining the status quo." This is the reason why people tend to wear the same outfit whenever they go out even though they have a ton of other clothes in their closets.

Since coordinating all these different items into one single unified look can be challenging and confusing, it's easy for people to get lost. And once they're lost, they'll likely go back to a combination that has worked for them before. As a result, they can't enjoy anything new, and even if they held a "solo coordination consultation party" like "Izumi did in this chapter, they'll probably go back to wearing the same outfits they wore yesterday the following morning. This is a very common phenomenon.

So the next time you have a solo coordination consultation party, make sure to take pictures of yourself on your smartphone and record your different pieces into a collection. That way, you can easily remember everything you came up with before and not be lost every morning.

Also, if you have a good grasp of what kinds of clothes you own and what kinds of clothes you need, you can stop yourself from buying redundant pieces of clothing.

A small change can have a tremendous effect. Because you can see how well you look with your own eyes, you can become fashionable much more quickly. You might feel weird taking selfies of yourself trying your different outfits, but please try it at least once. I keep a ton of pictures of myself in my phone and just pick one of them every morning. It's very convenient.

/a/nonymous presents:

Fuku wo Kuru nara Kon na Fui ni (If You're Gonna Dress Up, Do It Like This)

Translator:
Winstonite

Proofreader:
Persephone

Editor:
Aranea